Subcommittee information

Report of information gathering from subcommittee NAC 394

Testified: Kelly Wuest provided background information from the February 2022 meeting when the issue was brought before the commission to consider changing the NAC. Some of what is in regulation is built for the accredited schools. It doesn't bode very well with a small operation. It asks for the CPA reviewed financial for a startup business. That is one area that brought it here, along with the fact that it is difficult to determine if a school is financial stable. It was out of that meeting that determined the need for a subcommittee.

The first meeting of the subcommittee was held July 12, 2022. There was a lot of things that were thrown out in that meeting. Commissioner Clark brought up the different types of scores like Altman Z score and asset test ratio, The subcommittee discussed financial aid and how composite scores happen. When discussing the formula aspect, a general consensus was that we likely do not have the expertise to determine what is the best formula to use.

The subcommittee ask for input from different schools and different people. There was an idea brought up that there are some changes going on with Federal Financial Aid and there are some proposed rule regulations and rulemaking is happening with Department of Education that could shift what Department of Ed uses to determine financial stability.

Commissioner Clark spoke about the fact that loan forgiveness is changing, and we are going to have this ever-evolving world especially with the credit institutions in Federal Financial Aid and where does take us in determining it. Our conversation shifted to would we have the staff competency to be able to handle this. We talked about the Compliance Audit Investigator position requested from the legislature that is proposed a half VA and half State. Staff indicated that screening questions would focus on a financial background in auditing versus more of an educational background.

Commissioner Soares provided a response and recommendation to move forward. Overall writing consensus was that the Commission needs to find a mechanism to help determine what is financially sound and be able to apply that to our schools. When a school is not financially sound, we can bring them to the Commission for a determination. It was also suggested that we may want some assistance from people in the banking industry.

Commissioner Clark, yes, I think the banking industry when they are determining viability for a loan is looking at something a little bit different than what we would look at to determine if they are going to be a concern. It may be helpful to discuss how they calculate their lone worthiness. I don't know that applies to the financial responsibility of a school. We know it was a suggestion and it is something to look at. A lot of people have had a lot of discussions over the years about, how do you look at the financial stability of the school and us? The Department of Education spent two and a half years developing what eventually turned into the composite score back in the early to mid-nineties. I know I use the old Z score for the work with the accrediting commission. I have never fully understood it. I have a chart that I use. I look at the score compared to the chart and then I just look at the financials to see if there's anything standing out cash flow problems, things like that.

I would also like to point out that on page 20 of the packet that you sent out the article about student loan cancellation due to a school's false promises and misrepresentation is false. That was misreported. The discharges are part of a compromise agreement that the Department of Education went into so that they don't have to respond to the litigation. They never determined whether any of those claims were warranted or allowed the schools to provide evidence to counter those claims. They are just mass approving, it is in court right now and preliminarily the judge has said yes, it's probably going to go forward and get approved, but it is a compromise and schools were never afforded an opportunity to even address the allegations. So, where does that leave us? What do we do next? Do we make recommendations as a commission, or do we continue forward with more committee work?

Commissioner Frederick, ask about how the other states are handling this issue? Administrator Wuest, both NASASPS and NASAA (which is the VA, counterpart) have been delving into the issue of how do you make this determination? Mr. Rishling and I went to a training on how you read balance sheets, how to determine or to detect if somebody is possibly misrepresenting. Items like looking at students counts versus reported income, because we actual have some access to those numbers. We do at the state level too. So, we have been going to some training to get a better grip on things. A couple of States have a formula they are using. Those states are dealing with strictly accredited institutions, instead of unaccredited NCD programs. A few schools indicated they can provide a response to the request for recommendations by September.

Commissioner Clark, that's interesting that the schools that do have a formula are using it for accredited school's accreditation. Most accreditors are going to require a financial submission from their school. Those are the schools that are already being monitored, but like you said what about the mom-and-pop schools? Are we forgetting about them? And how do we test their financial viability? One of the suggestions that was made in the meeting was to require schools to submit a business plan, and that might give us better information about their viability than looking at their finances. If a school is cash strapped, they can always apply for a loan. You can come up with cash, you can bring investors in, there are ways around that right? In a business plan is what is going to dictate whether you are going to have cash flow in the first place. What you look for when you are testing a business plan. Do you need as MBA to really analyze a solid business plan? What does an SBA look for when they ask for a business plan? If somebody is going to apply for a business. Those are all thoughts and tools, areas that we may want to consider. I feel like we didn't really come out with answer we just came out with more questions.

Commissioner Frederick, yes, I agree, but I think we need to address this.

Commissioner Clark, we require bonds for new schools, that provides protection. If we were to analyze their financials, and their viability and their cash flows. Even if we are wrong, they have a bond, and we are still protected with that bond. I think that we need to remember that the riskier schools are the ones that are in provisional licenses, and they have a test period to see if they can make it through their audits. When do we release the bond? Is it once they get a full-term license, or what conditions must meet for the bond to be released?

Administrator Wuest, we haven't been releasing bonds since 2016 That is one of our problems. How do we determine what they look like financially to release?

COVID did not help, because those years look awful for a lot of institutions. So, people that might have been able to get a release of a bond, really did not get one because they don't look good during the time, when we would evaluate. Commissioner Clark, so we don't even have a mechanism for releasing the bond? Administrator Wuest, we do not have a set mechanism to release the bond.

Commissioner Clark, this agenda item is for possible action. Is there any recommendation we are looking for as far as a motion if we were going to make one?

Administrator Wuest, When the agenda item was created, it was to share information gathers and whether we should we have more subcommittees? Right now, the way we have the subcommittee structured there is no decision making at all in it. That was because of open meeting. Open meeting requires us to do certain things and we how we report. Right now, we do not have a lot of data to share, and it is not categorized at this point. There are so many facets and areas to focus. The NAC has not been looked at in eleven years. Right now, the NAC causes problems with the NCD's that have never been open. We are looking at financials that do not really give us much data. If we do a NAC change it has to go through the Commission and then we hold workshops and the entire legislative process.

Commissioner Clark, it seems like another subcommittee meeting is in order. Commissioner Kenny, I do not think I have enough information that I have heard to make a motion. Commissioner Frederick, me to I think it is premature. Kelly, do you have any information about the investigator position? Administrator Wuest, it is part of our budget request. Budgets will be determined in the next session starting February. Hopefully, it will not be cut. We do have it 50% funded by VA and if we do not use that money, it goes back to VA. The position would not get funded until July 2023 and then we would have the hiring process which they would not likely start until September or October of 2023.

Commissioner Clark – I do not have any motion. It just dies.

Motion: None

Public Comment

None.

The meeting was adjourned by Commissioner Clark. Time: 10:08 a.m.

Administrators Report
Prepared October 21, 2022

1. Computer system update – CPE has received approval from the State for the Technology Investment Notice (TIN) and will be submitting the RFP to purchasing in the upcoming week. Once posted, the RFP will be open for 45 days followed by a committee review, product demonstration and an award. CPE's goal is to purchase an off the shelf product configured to our workflow processes and to have the product operational no later than June 2023.

2. Follow Up Implementation of AB169

CPE has completed the review of 65% of licensee's compliance with the changes to NRS 394 resulting from the passage of AB169 in the 2021 legislative session. Staff will continue to review and approve institutional documents through the budget year and anticipate completion of the project by June 2023. LCB has updated NRS 394 which can be located at: <https://www.leg.state.nv.us/nrs/nrs-394.html>.

3. Institutional Closures

Sierra Nevada University – closed officially on June 30, 2022. The administrator is working with the SNU staff to receive all transcripts from the institution and any student files for students attending at the time of closure who did not elect to sign a transfer agreement with UNR or another school. UNR was originally identified to take possession of the transcript until the U.S. Department of Education notified SNU that although all resources were given to UNR, the event is recorded by DOE as a closure. SNU is working to digitize all transcripts and transfer the electronic filed to CPE. A time frame for completion has not been identified and the University will continue to provide graduates with transcripts until the transfer occurs. SNU has dedicated staff on site until June 30, 2023.

Arch Dental Academy was originally license under the name Reno Dental Assistant School in September 2019. Due to the pandemic, the school owned by Vandelay Education decided to relocate to Las Vegas name and change the name. No students were impacted by the closure and transcript files are being maintained by Vandelay Education which has other locations in Nevada.

No new provisional licenses were issued in the quarter.

4. Backlog of work

CPE continues to experience a backlog of work due to the number of “change” applications (location, name, added program, modifications) and renewals submitted missing required information in the application or out of compliance with NRS and NAC 394. Staff must provide a response to these institutions of the deficiencies and then review the documents again upon resubmission. CPE is still returning 98% of submissions for revision or missing information. Historically, this return rate was at 50-55%. Although program modifications and added programs have increased, staff has seen a drop in initial applications for licensing.

5. State Approving Agency – VA Education Program
